昨天在 Google "I know a crazy when I see one" 的时候碰巧看见这首老歌听了一下，今天就迷上了。😂

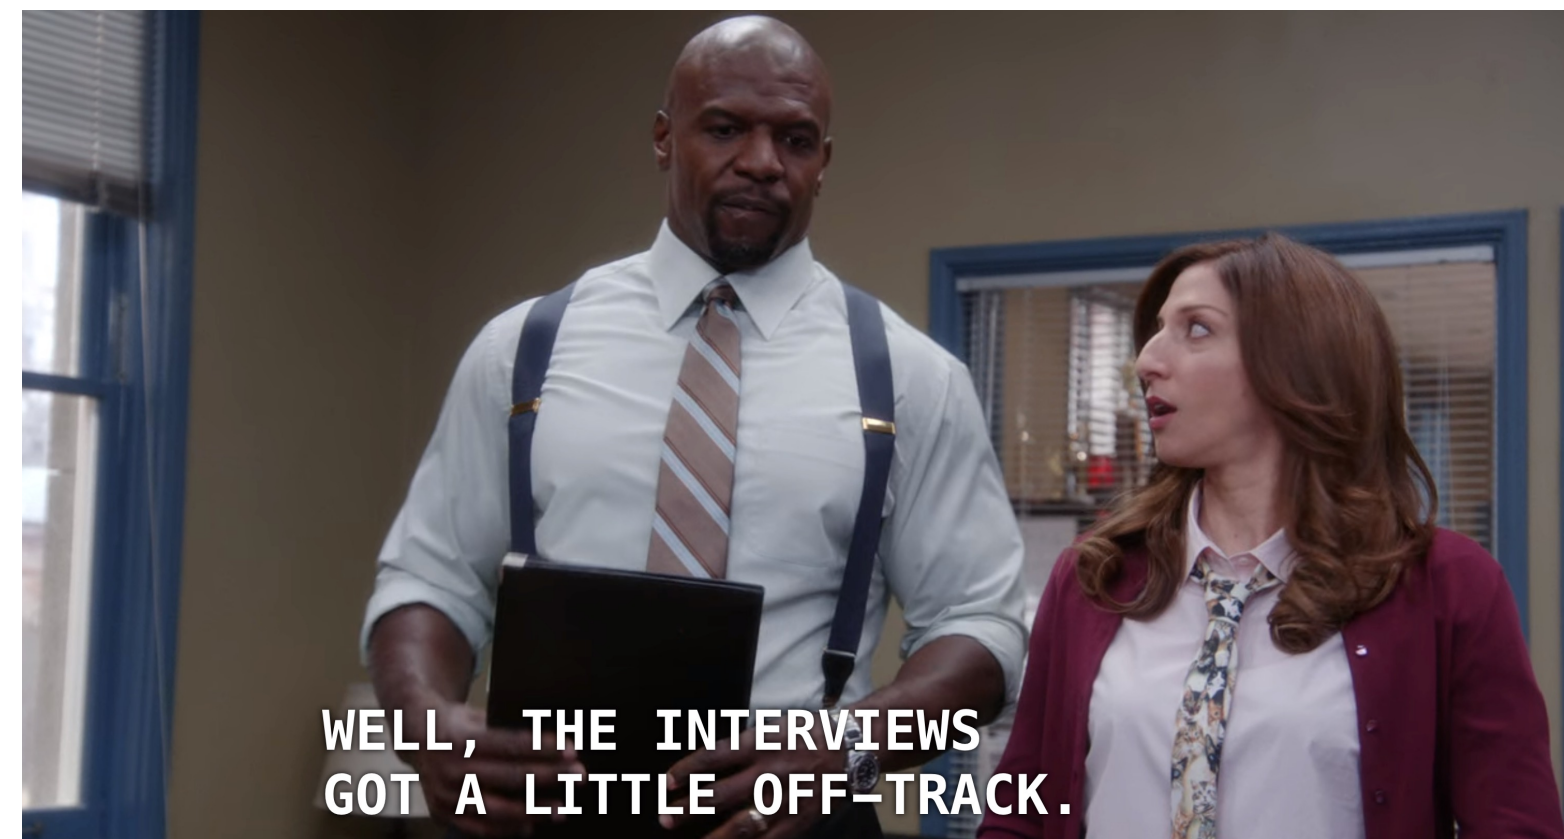

So don't you knock on my door
I won't be home anymore
You can find me out walking in the sun
Oh, you hide it so well
It isn't easy to tell
But I know a heartache
When I see one

There was a time
I was a true believer
Your love was the only way
Well you can save all your sweet talkin'
For some other fool
Only a fool would believe what you say

My sad story trumps your insult.

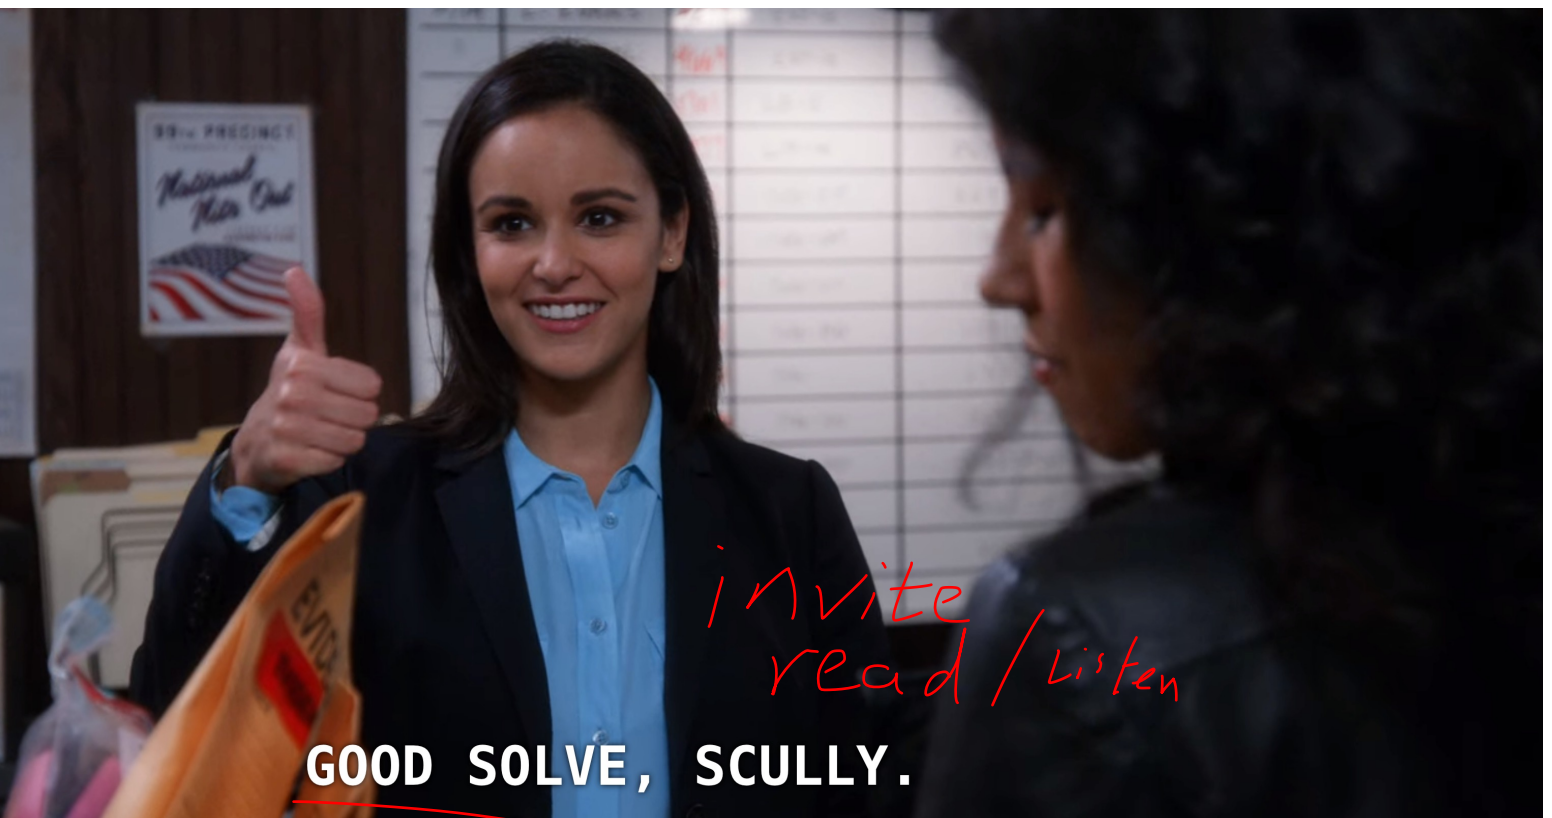

WELL, THE INTERVIEWS

"Brain is the new sexy" or "Brainy is the new sexy" to mean "smart is the new sexy"?

If you're trying to convey the idea that being smart is the new sexy, then the correct sentence would be "Brainy is the new sexy." The word "brainy" is an adjective that means intelligent or smart, and it would be the appropriate word to use in this context to convey the meaning that you are intending.

The word "brain" is a noun that refers to the organ in our head that controls the nervous system, and it doesn't have the same connotation of intelligence or sexiness that you're trying to convey. Therefore, "Brain is the new sexy" would not be the appropriate sentence to express the intended meaning.

看了一些和李易峰相关的英文报道，标题都用到了 soliciting/solicitation。知道 solicit 是“拉客”，原来也可以表示“嫖娼”，它的本质是教唆他人犯罪。这个罪行叫 solicitation of prostitution，由 prostitute 发起就是“拉客卖淫”（一般叫 soliciting/prostitution/sell sex），由 patron 发起就是“召妓嫖娼”（一般叫 solicit/patronize/hire/buy/visit a prostitute）。具体情况还挺复杂，以上仅供参考 😊 另外注意，BBC 当初报道李云迪时用的是 solicit a prostitute/sex worker（图5），李易峰这里多是 solicit prostitutes 🙄

Fishing for Likes With China's 'Fish Tail Guy'

Boat pilot captures the imagination with photos of colorful research specimens caught around the world.

The Paper

Jan 17, 2023 | 3-min read

As the pilot of a marine research vessel, Meng Xiangyu is used to making waves at sea. Now he's making a splash online thanks to his hobby of photographing fish tails.

Over the past three years, Meng has gained more than 200,000 followers across Chinese social media including WeChat and Xiaohongshu by posting pictures of the colorful fish collected as scientific specimens.

Meng, known to his fans as "Fish Tail Guy," developed an early interest in a life at sea, despite growing up in the inland city of Linyi, in the eastern Shandong province. The first time he saw open water was at age 19, when he moved to the southeastern city of Xiamen to study marine technology.

Will Japan lose top talent to Singapore, Hong Kong, London over weak yen and lower pay?

- Japan is seeking to lure highly-skilled engineers, researchers and managers earning over US$149,000 as the global race for talent heats up
- While the lifestyle is a draw, recruiters say factors such as the weak currency and inflexible visa rules may lead Japan to lose out to other cities

Japan is joining the global hunt for talent as it banks on its stability and lifestyle to lure top technical candidates, but while the country remains a draw, recruiters said hurdles remain that give cities such as Singapore and New York an edge.

Prime Minister Fumio Kishida's government is set to roll out a new visa to entice foreign applicants for roles related to technology and innovation. Those with "highly-skilled professional" residence status will be allowed to bring their families under the scheme, which is expected to be launched in April.

A Celebrity's Sweater From the Spring Festival Gala Goes Viral

Some viewers tune into the annual television event just to spot the latest fashion trends.

China's Spring Festival Gala has become an unlikely event to look out for fashion and beauty trends.

Outfits worn by celebrities during Saturday night's gala have become a trending topic online, with thousands of people rushing to e-commerce platform Taobao to update their wardrobe. A pink V-neck sweater, with a pair of bows, worn by comedian Jin Jing became an instant hit with "Jin Jing's sweater" trending on microblogging platform Weibo.

First aired in 1983, the Spring Festival Gala has been an annual affair on state broadcaster China Central Television to welcome the Lunar New Year. The gala's massive viewership — some 655 million users watched this year's live show — has turned it into a platform for brand sponsorships, as businesses seek to cash in from the event.

Chinese Professor Suspended For Racist, Homophobic Speech

A student interrupted the talk and objected to the remarks being made.

Marry foreigners to have smarter children; homosexuality is “abnormal”; and the only purpose of studying is to make money. These were some of the controversial remarks a now-suspended associate professor made during a speech to high school students in Hefei, in the eastern Anhui province, last week.

His inappropriate ^{unscemly} comments that smacked of bigotry emerged in posts on social media Sunday, triggering widespread criticism. While the posts have since been taken down, regional education authorities announced they were investigating the incident.

The social media post claimed that Chen Hongyou, an associate professor specializing in education at Hefei Normal University, suggested that good students should marry foreigners to have smarter children.

“He used his son, who studied abroad and has an American girlfriend, as an example. He indicated that his son was special compared to others,” one of the posts stated. It also added that Chen was paid more than 20,000 yuan ($3,000) to attend the school event, which was aimed at motivating students.

According to the same post, Chen termed homosexuality “abnormal behavior,” and also reportedly told students that the only purpose of the education was just to make money.

In the post, a video shows a student interrupting Chen while he spoke. The student is seen rushing onstage, grabbing the microphone, and arguing with Chen. “We’re studying for the rejuvenation of the Chinese nation,” the student is heard yelling.

In a notice Sunday, Lujiang County authorities said that two separate teams were investigating both the high school and Chen. Hefei Normal University later told The Paper, Sixth Tone’s sister publication, that Chen was suspended following the event, and his profile taken down from the official university website.

In an interview, Chen told The Paper that he was “joking” about the topics of gender, nationality, and race during an impromptu talk while warming up before his speech and was misunderstood by the students.

“I was trying to say that they need to change their destiny with their actions and step into a larger world,” Chen told The Paper, adding that he has given more than 1,000 lectures across the country over the years and was trusted by schools and education authorities.

Saturday's event at the high school sparked widespread discussion online. Netizens accused the professor of inculcating incorrect values into students, and praised the courage of the student who interrupted him.

"It's nice to see that the post-'00s generation isn't afraid of challenging authority," a user wrote on Weibo, the microblogging platform.

Scandals around scholars making inappropriate online and offline remarks have made headlines in China over the years. In 2022, a male teacher in the eastern Zhejiang province was fired after making sexist comments about his colleagues on social media.

In another case, from 2021, a Shanghai-based college teacher drew widespread criticism and was sacked after he questioned the official death toll of the Nanjing Massacre during the Sino-Japan War in a history class.

Chinese education authorities have pledged to improve teaching standards by promoting role models and strengthening supervision in hiring and evaluating processes. In 2020, the Ministry of Education introduced a code of conduct banning postgraduate tutors from having inappropriate relationships with students after a surge in sexual harassment cases.
